

"SO AS TO REMOVE MOUNTAINS" BY SKY TALLONE (COMEDY)
PLAY ROOM SCENE: JENNY & MORGAN (MALE OR FEMALE, 5-11)

INT. MORGAN'S HOUSE / PLAY ROOM - AFTERNOON

Lined with book cases, the whole middle of the room is an extravagant play space; complete with the best quality train set, doll house, and creepy ventriloquist dummies.

Jenny sits on the floor directly across from Morgan, who is decked out in a magician's outfit; complete with top hat and cape. She holds a white rabbit in her lap and stares at Jenny with judgmental indifference.

JENNY

So... what's your rabbit's name?

MORGAN

The rabbit is simply a tool in my immense toolbox; like my wand or my cape or hat. You wouldn't have me name my hat, now would you Jenny?

JENNY

Um... wanna... play a game?

MORGAN

Alright... hey, do you like Legos?

JENNY

Yeah, sure! I have a bunch of them.

MORGAN

Okay, so why don't you run to your house, get your Legos, then bring them back here and give them to me?

JENNY

What, you have a game you want to play with them?

MORGAN

No, that is the game. You get the Legos and give them to me. To keep.

JENNY

Doesn't sound like a game as much as just... me giving you my stuff. Besides, don't you have enough?

Jenny references the extravagant, mostly-built structure in the corner, constructed entirely of Legos; complete with turrets, a draw bridge and a statue of Morgan.

Three WORKER KIDS quietly work on the tower, sweating and tired. Maggie runs in with her basket of just a few Legos.

MAGGIE

This is all I could get.

WORKER KID 1

Ugh, that's almost nothing! We're gonna have to pause construction.

MORGAN

Then get out of my sight this instant and figure out how to make it happen!! Get out!!!!

The worker kids leave. Morgan gives Jenny a confident grin.

MORGAN (CONT'D)

Well as you can see, I still need more materials to complete the project, so what do you say?

JENNY

Well if I give you my Legos, what do I get?

Morgan points behind Jenny.

MORGAN

That unicorn.

Jenny looks behind her. Nothing. When she turns back, Morgan is gone; replaced by a faint poof of smoke. Jenny's shocked.
